"It is generally believed," said Mr. Straus,

"that the charitable work of the Baronese was inspired by the benefactions of her husband, but those who knew her and her family know better. She always co-operated with him and when he died the spirit of both was exemplified in the wonde f il work she did in the short time by which she survived him. "I cannot illustrate her character better than by relating one incident in her lift of which I had personal knowledge. The company in which her husband was interested had started to build a railroad to connect Austria with the Orient. The first section of this ran from Constantinople to a little village eight or nine miles away The Turkish Government arranged to build a magnificent station at this village, but it happened that the station was to be in the centre of a thickly settled part of the vil age and that to erect it would necesthe vil age and that to erect it would necessitate the tearing down of a number of houses of poor people. The Turkish Government, of course, guaranteed indennity to these people, but the Turkish Government is proverbially slow in settling, and the claims of these people might have continued to be only claims for years.

"The Baroness heard of this, as she always did hear of suffer ng—tor every one could reach her with an appeal—and she asked her busband about it. He said his company was not responsible for it, and she usked him it he couldn't arrange it so that the indemnites would be made first. He husband arranged matters so that this was paid before the station was built and the most enthusiastic of all when that station was opened were those poor villagers.

"I distinctly remender that in 1887, when she came to Constantinople, she seemed to be full of work and I subsequently learned that she distributed by herself in the slums—and the slums there are slums—more than £25,000. What she gave through others pobody ever knew: the amount was very

I saw a pile of envelope backs on her desk, and on asking what these were for I learned that she gave them to school-children to scribble on. That will give you

Mr. Straus then read two of many letters which he had received from the Baroness when she was making plans for the New York trade school and the home for working rirls which bear the name of D. Hirsch. This Mr. Straus did to show her wonderful

"I wish I could give you an adequate octure of this great woman," he continued.

Those who work d with ner caught the contagion of her spirit. She had the wonderful faculty of making all who helped her see that she was grateful to them for their aid. She once said to me that he who hought wealth brought happiness was

PURROY AFTER HAFFEN'S SCALP. Accuses the Bronx Chieftain of Ingratitude and Would Heed Another Call.

In a speech before the Purroy Association of Melrose on Thursday night, Henry D. Purroy made it clear that he would not again support Louis F. Haffen for President of The Bronx. Most of his hearers got the idea that Mr. Purroy wouldn't be averse to running for that office. Mr. Haffen was at the dinner, but left before Mr. Purroy had had his say. City Magistrate Breen made a

Now, perhaps it was the height of presumption for one who during a long career had more than once been an open rebel against authority to expect any consideration from either Mr. Haffen's organization or from the then, I was presumptuous enough to believe that I still had some remnant of claim upon

DECISION AGAINST POTTER.

THE INJUNCTION REINSTATING HIM IS VACATED.

Justice Howard Says That It Is Doubtful if the Expelled Guardsman Was a Member of the Painters' Union of Scheneetady-Potter's Counsel Will Appeal.

SCHENBOTADY, Feb. 14.-Justice Howard of the Supreme Court to-day vacated the injunction granted to William Potter, the militiaman, reinstating him in Painters' Union No. 62 of this city, from which he had been expelled because of his membership in the National Guard, as alleged at the time of his expulsion.

Justice Heward said that from the reading of the papers he concludes that Potter asked for more than he is entitled to, and that to attempt to reinstate him into a position in which it is at best doubtful he ever held and which might result in mixing and complicating the situation, would be unwise. The right of the plaintiff, the Judge said, must be clear in order to entitle him to an injunction pending trial of the action. He said that Potter's contention in regard to his being a member of the union is upon his own showing full of doubt, and that his affidavits and statements add to the doubt. Therefore, he said, the injunction should be vacated. The Court said that the "Militia Clause" in the union's constitution may be ill-advised and unwise, but that there is nothing in the constitution, notice or application blank which leads him to believe that the union is either hostile to the public defence or that it trenches upon the efficiency of the military power of the State. Former Justice J. S. Lendon, who in conjunction with the law firm of Ystes & Crupe prepared the papers for Potter, said to-day, after being told of the decision: "We will appeal the decision. That is all I have to say now."

Herman C. Crupe of the firm of Ystes & Crupe was much surprised when told that the injunction had been vacated. We have no statement to make until after the the injunction had been vacated. "We have no statement to make until after the order has been served on us," he said. "We will probably appeal the decision."

Dennis Downey, president of Union No. 62, said:
"The decision of Justice Howard is no surprise to me. In fact I would have been greatly surprised if the Court had made the injunction permanent. There was a preponderance of evidence offered to show that William Petter rever helenged to the the injunction permanent. There was a preponderance of evidence offered to show that William Petter never belonged to the union and I could not see how Justice Howard could reach any other conclusion.

When asked what effect the decision would have on the boycott placed on Shafer & Barry, Mr. Downey said it would not change the situation at all. He continued:

"The boycott was placed on Shafer & Barry because they employed non-union men, not because they reëmployed Potter. The union would be in contempt if they had attempted to boycott the firm of Shafer & Barry for reëmploying Potter.

Mr. Barry of the firm of Shafer & Barry, in whose employ Potter is now, said in

MAY HAVE TO COERCE SALVADOR. The Award of the Arbitration Commi

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Payment of certain claims awarded to the United States against the Government of Salvador by an arbitration commission, of which Sir Henry Strong, Chief Justice of Canada, was president, will become due on March 1. The Government of Salvador has pro-tested against the award and the indications are that it will not be paid on the date fixed by the commission. There are rumors in Washington that the squadron of the Pacific naval station, now on its way to Honduras for the purpose of protecting American interests in that country during the preva ence of the preent revolutionary disturbances, will make a visit to Salvador waters some time in March if the award is not paid by that time Although not admitting that there is any intention of attempting to course Salvador into paying the award, it is explained vador into paying the award, it is explained that the circumstances of this case are entirely different from those surrounding the occroive operations of Great Britain, Germany and Italy against Venezuela, for the reason that the claims which the United States seeks to collect have been passed upon by a tribunal of arbitration from whose decision there is no appeal, while the claims of the European allies against Venezuela have never been arbitrated.

JUDGE GROSSCUP ON TRUSTS. Belleves in Government "Visitation" Se That the Plain People Will Invest.

ANN ABBOR, Mich., Feb. 14.-Judge P. S. Grosscup of the Federal Court of Appeals in Chicago to-night addressed the students and faculty members of the Good Government Club of the University of Michigan on the present tedencies of corporations in the United States, he favored Government supervision of them.

Judge Grosscup said that while the population of the country had increased 20 per cent. and the wealth of the country had increased 25 per cent, in the last ten years, the bank deposits-chiefly savings bankstime. The Judge inferred from this that the plain people were distrustful of investing in the great corporations of to-day. and that the result was "the separation of labor from proprietorship." He said the mobilization of these two forces as enemies "is the most unrepublican and menacing fact that confronts the American people." He regretted that the present industrial condition "is detaching from the friends of property the great middle body of

Judge Grosseup said that to acquire property was an instinct of American heritage. He said that when corporate ownership is "cleared of thimble-rigging and pitfalia" the people will again take up "their share in the proprietorship of the country." He said that pro:t-sharing enterprises of several of the great corporations indicated this. He mentioned the Steel Trust in this connection. He declared that the American would not submit to tricking and that he must be assured that corporations were hencestly formed and managed before he would again invest in managed before he would again invest in the constitution, notice or application blank which leads him to believe that the union is either hostile to the public defence or that it trenches upon the efficience of the military power of the State.

Former Justice J. S. He added:

"Unless I am greatly deceived the mad-
